

Bottom 10% acres burned  Top 10% acres burned

Idaho is home to several of the nation's largest national forests.

L.A. County and Butte County, the starting points for the recent Woolsey Fire and Camp Fire, have been victims to wildfires in the past

The George Washington and Jefferson National Forest and the Daniel Boone National Forest surround this hotspot.

Alaska has had more acres burned by wildfires since 1992 than any other state in the U.S.

The Mississippi River has carved out a faint no-fire zone through the southern United States.

